

Priscilla Pate Full Bio

Priscilla is passionate about giving women the tools to empower them to live their best life. She believes that a better life begins with a better You! From being a stay at home mom to becoming an entrepreneur and building her own six-figure retail business, she has lived out a life that proves that it can be done!

She served for years as the Administrative Assistant to the Dean of Education in a Missions training Institute in Fort Worth Texas. The school was in its formative years so Priscilla was part of creating and developing many of the departments and systems that were implemented for admissions and enrollment of local and international students. She was also the coordinator and leader of many group mission trips to Israel and Africa.

She and her husband Kent formed a non-profit in 1999 and through their work in training and raising up leaders they traveled to twelve nations around the world. They implemented humanitarian aid projects which included feeding, clothing and providing economic restoration of homes and communities in areas reaching the less fortunate. They also pioneered a work on the Navajo Nation in Sawmill, Arizona reaching Native American families.

Because of their passion to serve Priscilla and her husband also founded a church and were the Senior Pastors in the Dallas, Texas area. Once again it was their heart beat to teach, train and equip leaders and reach out of the walls of the church to build up people and communities with the love of Jesus Christ.

Through each of these endeavors, Priscilla has always had a heart to impart worth, love, vision and encouragement to women. With her extensive experience in business, marriage and motherhood Priscilla is the perfect candidate for the job.

Priscilla has utilized all of her experience and has taken it a step farther in her and her husbands business, Lift Leadership and Consulting. Kent and Priscilla both are certified , speakers, trainers and coaches with the largest Personal Development company in the world, the John Maxwell Group.

Priscilla is passionate about helping women find their purpose and teaches women how to start loving the life they live. She offers services to non-profits, churches, women's organizations and small and large businesses. Some of the services she has available: Master-Classes, Personal Coaching, Workshops and Retreats. She also Key-Notes at larger events and offers a fun interactive leadership game that serves as an assessment tool for maximum results.

Priscilla loves her family and loves life! She has applied these principles and has found that they work!
